

CLOTHES BRIGADE

One of the ways to ease the burden of individuals and families living in impoverished communities is to provide them with clothing and shoes. When we send brigades into a community we also provide a distribution of clothing and shoes. By doing this we help relieve some of the financial burdens on these families.

This is accomplished by gathering new or slightly worn clothes and shoes. We have found people to be generous in this area but often we don't have enough, especially shoes. It's not unusual to see a brigade member in the airport returning home wearing flip-flops because they gave their shoes away before leaving the village.

Gathering donated clothes and shoes is not expensive but the cost of packing and shipping clothes internationally often prevents us from sending as many as we would like. We need your help to continue providing this much needed relief.

A typical international trip for our Clothes Brigade is made up of about four people. The average total budget for each international Clothes Brigade is $5,250. This amount does not include international travel expense, we ask each of our participants to pay their own travel cost. This budget consists of the following expenses:

- $2000 for packaging supplies and shipping cost
- $3,100 for in-country expenses (transportation, meals, lodging & security)
- $150 for translators

You can best help by donating funds to help offset this budget.

Please allow us to be your emissary as together we equip, embrace and enhance lives.
